Cultivating
ROSE QUESNEL
Native Canadian Tobacco

Tobacco requires a large amount of care throughout its growth. Constant shallow cultivation is practised after the tobacco plants are set out until they have reached a size where further cultivation would damage the leaves and injure the roots. The plant in its early stages is liable to injury from the attacks of the tobacco-worm and other parasites which commit great devastation to the crops. To prevent the leading stem from running up too quickly to flower and seed, and so starving the leaves, the top is nipped off with the thumb and nail, leaving only nine or twelve leaves on each stem. Later on the suckers or shoots which now make their appearance at the junction of the leaves and about the roots of the plants, are removed. Tobacco is also subject to "ring," a kind of blight causing much injury to the crops. The planter must, therefore, protect his crop against all these possible injuries by proper spraying and cultivating.

All of these different operations take time and cost money, but the increased price which the planter receives for his crop warrants the expenditure and care. Nothing but tobacco cultivated as above enters into the making of

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION REINSTATES "BILL" HUGHES BUT REFUSES HIM PERMISSION TO PLAY WITH STARS; CORPORATION COMMITTEE STEPS OVER HEAD OF ASSN.

DENIED PERMISSION TO PLAY WITH THE STARS, FORMER MCGILL HOCKEY AND FOOTBALL PLAYER SECURES CONSENT OF THREE MEMBERS OF THE ATHLETICS' COMMITTEE OF CORPORATION—GEORGE SCOTT, SCI. '17, REPORTED TO THE ATHLETICS' COMMITTEE OF CORPORATION FOR FIGURING IN SKI MEET AT DARTMOUTH WITHOUT PERMISSION OF ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION—HUGHES HAS BEEN UNDER SUSPENSION SINCE THE FALL OF 1915, BUT HAS SEVERAL TIMES APPEARED IN COLOURS OF AN OUTSIDE ORGANIZATION.

In spite of the ruling of the Athletic Association, C. J. Fleet, K.C., Dr. Howard T. Barnes, and Dr. F. W. Harvey, members of the Athletics' Committee of Corporation, yesterday afternoon gave consent to Hughes' playing with the Stars last night.

The constitutional aspect of the action of the Athletics' Committee of Corporation is questionable, since constitutionally "students desiring to participate in 'outside' athletics must first obtain a sanction from the Athletic Association, such sanction to be approved by the Athletics' Committee of Corporation."

Hughes was denied by the Athletic Association permission to play with the Stars, but took the case to the Athletics' Committee of Corporation, which, while it "has vested in it the ultimate authority and power of supervision in all matters affecting Athletics in the University," has never overridden the action of the Athletic Association. A dangerous precedent has thus been established. Moreover, neither the president of the Athletic Association, W. H. Gerrie, Sci. '17, nor Dr. Arthur S. Lamb, Med. '17, Athletic Director, intermediary between the Athletic Association and the Committee, was consulted by the members of the Committee before consent was given to Hughes.

The members of the Athletics' Committee of Corporation who gave this consent acted without receiving any advices from the Athletic Association as to the result of yesterday's meeting, and merely on the request of Hughes.

Yesterday's Meeting.

A very important meeting of the Athletic Association was held in the Union yesterday at 12.30, at which a long discussion resulted at the action of two students, W. P. Hughes, Law '18, and Geo. Scott, Sci. '17, in continuing to break the rules of the Association after having already been under suspension. The meeting first dealt with the application of B. W. Holtman for permission to arrange a hockey game between Macdonald College and a team representing Second Year Arts, and after granting this permission proceeded to the consideration of the above mentioned men.

The first case was that of W. P. Hughes (Bill Hughes). The secretary read an application from Mr. Hughes, asking for reinstatement in the Association, and also asking permission to play with the Stars of this city for the rest of the hockey season. Mr. Hughes appeared before the meeting and explained his case, beginning with his first offence which resulted in his suspension, and then relating in order, the other events which occurred and which had brought things to a climax in yesterday's meeting. After answering a few questions put to him by different members of the Association Mr. Hughes retired from the meeting, and the case was considered on its merits.

In brief the case is as follows: In the fall of 1915 Mr. Hughes, along with a few other prominent football players, took part in a football game with the M.A.A.A. without the consent of the McGill Athletic Association, and as this is a direct infringement of the Constitution of the Association, they were as a consequence suspended indefinitely from further participation in University Athletics. That winter (1915-16), Mr. Hughes signed up with the Stars of this city to play hockey with them for the rest of the season, thinking, as he states, that the McGill Athletic Association had no further claim on him since he was suspended. The meeting were not entirely clear that Mr. Hughes had any grounds to base his assumption on in view of the fact that he had been around the college so long and had taken an active part in athletics and particularly in view of the fact that he had at one time filled the position of President of the said Association, and certainly should above all others, be acquainted with the rules. The result was that he continued to play with the Stars during the whole of last season, and nothing was done to stop him apparently.

Played with the Stars.

When this year's hockey season came around, Mr. Hughes again signed up with the Stars, and started playing with them in their scheduled games in the Montreal League, and also went to Pittsburgh with the same team, and took part in a game there still without the sanction of the Athletic Association, and besides still

Canadians on Trench Raid go Forward Like Wings Under Half-Back's Kick, says Lieut. R. Perrault

"I've had an opportunity of seeing many of the raids that our fellows have made; it's really a sight. You've seen the football squad rush forward on a kick? It's not unlike it. And the men are tickled to death about it. Those who have been in the raid walk around afterwards, hands high, chest out, etc., as if they had conquered the world; they feel that they have it on the Boche, coming and going." This is one paragraph from an interesting letter which has been received by a member of the editorial staff of McGill Daily from Lieut. R. B. Perrault, Sci. '17, who is at the front with the 3rd Canadian Pioneers.

Lieut. Perrault's letter is as follows: "I get the Daily by every Canadian mail now, and it's quite a treat to hear of the Alma Mater and what's on around college. The line out here is crowded with McGill boys, so these Dailies go the round, so to speak. Among those I've seen are Scott, Sci. '16; Seath, Sci. '16; Waterous, Sci. '16 (he's getting slim); Robertson, Sci. '16; Montgomery, Med. '17; Heney, Sci. '16; Kennedy, Sci. '14; and Flewin, Sci. '12 (in our own battalion), and in England I also saw many of them."

"I came out with the first draft of affair, very slow and, of course, no officers that came across at the end of August, 1916. Most of us were fellows who thought that our battalions wouldn't get over in time for the end. It's hard to understand now where we ever got that idea. However, we were shipped across on the great old Olympic. The trip was splendid good weather the whole way. They landed us in Merrie England, and sent us to the C. M. S., but, fortunately for us, the authorities there knew nothing about it, so we were all granted leave to London for five days, accommodation being limited.

"Five days saw us back at the school, sadder but wiser young fellows, and we fell into training in earnest. This was short-lived, however. Ten days later 200 officers left for France, and 150 more a week after. I moved with this second draft.

"As to crossing the Channel, I would not recommend that to my worst enemy. It seemed as if we were going half round the world to get to France; it took all night, and what a seat! Then the Base, crowded with A.P.M.'s and Military Police, so we little boys would not be misled.

"The trip up the line is a miserable business this summer.

"The trip up from the river Somme to our new front was done on foot, but quite leisurely, I really believe everybody enjoyed it, the country we went through not having been ravaged. The weather was all that could be desired, and as to myself, I always looked forward to the time when we would start hiking again. Eventually we arrived at our own front, which was as quiet as a graveyard; it isn't exactly the same now.

"The men out here are not 'straining at the leash,' as one reads in newspapers, but everyone is keen on seeing the thing through, and Fritz is getting to realize it. 'Tis said that Napoleon once stated that 'an army moves on its stomach.' Quite true, but the old fellow forgot to mention rum, mail, and cigarettes. If it wasn't for those three things, there wouldn't be such a war; the fellows couldn't have stood as long as they have."

THE HUGHES' CASE.

The whole question of the direction and control of University athletics is at stake, following the action yesterday of the Chairman and two other members of the Athletics' Committee of Corporation in granting permission to W. P. Hughes, an outlaw of the Athletic Association, to play with an outside organization, when the Athletic Association had expressly refused that permission after a consideration of the merits and demerits of the case. Further, the Athletics' Committee of Corporation granted this permission without having even been officially notified of the result of the Athletic Association's deliberations, and without having conferred in their action with either the President of the Athletic Association or the Director of Athletics, who is constitutionally recognized as the intermediary between the Athletic Association, representing the undergraduates, and the Athletics' Committee of Corporation, representing the University.

This is indeed a pretty state of affairs, and one which is entirely contrary to the spirit of previous negotiations between the two bodies which deal with the athletics of the University. The Athletic Association has always had jurisdiction over cases such as that in which Hughes is involved, and has referred the matter for approval or disapproval to the Athletics' Committee of Corporation, which has the ultimate say in the direction of student athletics, but which has never before exercised this power under such extraordinary circumstances. The right of the Athletics' Committee to stop all athletics if so pleased cannot be denied, but to reverse a decision of the Athletic Association in order to please an individual outlaw of the Association would appear to be absolutely without precedent, and, so far as McGill Daily can gather, morally and technically without justification.

As a matter of fact, the Athletics' Committee of Corporation, in granting Hughes the permission which he desired, and which was refused him by the Athletic Association, was holding up to ridicule a regulation which was inserted in the Constitution of the Athletic Association at the suggestion of the Committee itself as a means of preventing the playing with outside athletic organizations of students who might by that means impair the reputation of the University or bring discredit upon the Athletic Association of which they were members. It is for the reputation of the University that the Athletics' Committee of Corporation has to answer, and if the present state of affairs continues, who knows but that there may be a return to the old order of things, when undisciplined bodies of students, lacking control and without proper direction of their interests, set out on a barnstorming tour of neighbouring centres, played under McGill colours, and conducted themselves in a manner which certainly brought no credit upon the University or upon themselves. If the Athletics' Committee of Corporation persists in its line of action as adopted yesterday, it would be quite consistent for it to agree to such a state of affairs as outlined above, which would mean the setting at naught of years of effort on the part of the Athletic Association, which has sought persistently to direct carefully University athletics.

Things have come to a pretty pass when the Athletics' Committee of Corporation has seen fit to deal in such a high-handed and arbitrary manner with matters which have customarily and without opposition on the part of the Committee, been regulated by the Athletic Association. In the face of the facts as they have been set forth above, and in another column in this issue of McGill Daily, the position of the executive of the Athletic Association would scarcely appear to be tenable. In the opinion of McGill Daily, ample justification might be found in recent developments for the disbandment of the Athletic Association. Let the officers resign, and let the Athletics' Committee of Corporation alone run athletics.

THE VALUE OF A LAUGH.

Did you ever stop to think of the value of a good hearty laugh? Did you ever think of it as being an asset, something that can be turned to your advantage, as can technical training?

Recently a well known captain of industry remarked that before he hired a man he told a funny story, and he could, to a certain extent, tell by his laughter whether or not the man would be satisfactory.

Laughter is one of the few things that is contagious, and yet does not bring sickness or death; instead, it is a wonderful tonic that builds up men and prolongs life. It is an accomplishment that should be developed.

Laughter is the only thing that can lift the veil of gloom; it can make the sun shine on dark days; it can take the sting from defeat; in fact, it is a cure for all ills and ails.—The Daily Kansan.

HARVARD EFFEMINATE SAYS STANFORD MAN

Says Western Democracy is Not to be Found at Harvard.

The West finds Harvard without the spirit of easy democracy while Harvard men are effeminate is the opinion of the West imbibed in the "Impressions of Harvard," written by J. K. Norton, one of the bulldozers of the Stanford track team which went to the intercollegiates last May and stayed in Cambridge as the guest of the Harvard Athletic Association. The article is reprinted in the Harvard Illustrated Magazine this month.

The western writes: "The Harvard student differs from the western man in several ways. The 'rough' is nowhere to be found, and the air of general familiarity that exists in the West is absent in the Harvard yard. The Harvard man, somewhat more prone to superficialities, is better polished or more effeminate as you wish to call it. He holds

THE OUTLOOK IN JAPAN.

One of the great questions exercising the Japanese statesmen and business men at the present moment, is the question of the position of Japanese trade after the war. The war has brought about great trade changes in many countries, both belligerent and neutral, and in Japan, these changes have often been of an almost revolutionary nature. The Japanese trader is notably quick to see, and even to foresee, opportunities, and to take the very fullest advantage of them as they arise; but he is also astute enough to recognize that the great opportunities which have come his way, during the last two years, are the result of conditions entirely transitory. War work is all very well in its way; it has already resulted in a rehabilitation of Japanese finance unlooked for by Japanese statesmen before the war, save as the object of many years of persistent effort; but the great object of Japan, at this time, is to secure permanent markets for her industrial output.

The Japanese Government is going about the matter with all its accustomed thoroughness, and careful investigations are being carried on in those countries which offer the best prospects of affording a permanent market for Japanese goods. Japan is willing to manufacture for and sell to any country. She loses no opportunity for work; but as the great mass of data relating to her wide-flung activities flows into the Government offices at Tokio, it is very carefully scrutinized. The trade expert does not allow himself to be deceived for a moment. Here is a good contract, but it will not recur. Here is another equally good; but the competition for business, after the war, will be so great that Japan, situated as she is, could not possibly obtain it. Here, however, is a trade opening which might profitably be fostered, and here is yet another which must, at all costs, be kept open, and made permanent.

And so it goes on, and has been going on for some time, until the Japanese trade expert, to-day, is beginning to see daylight. He can now form some estimate as to how trade will flow after the war, and he is taking action accordingly. He already sees clearly enough that, in the matter of new development, Japan must look to Russia first, and, after Russia, to South America and the region of the South Seas. India has long been written down as a temporary market only. The Indians themselves have risen to the occasion, in the matter of supplying their own needs, far too definitely to admit of Japan's entertaining hopes of permanently replacing the Indian market. One fact, however, has emerged with overwhelming force, and that is that Japan's great market, after the war, as it was before the war, will be China. Whatever else happens, the Chinese market, for both commercial and political reasons, must be held and developed. To this end Japan is exerting every effort. For some time there has been established, at Shanghai, a Japanese school of commerce on a large scale, and here large numbers of Japanese clerks and agents are being prepared, so that Japanese firms operating in China may never be at a loss for trained men to seize any opportunity that may arise for new developments. These men are not only taught the language and the ways of trade, but they are carefully trained, on the spot, as it were, in the matter of Chinese customs, and as to those little likes and dislikes, traditions, and etiquettes that appear so small but mean so much, if trade is to be successful.

Then again a strong movement is on foot to establish a Sino-Japanese Bank, which would have for one of its main objects the helping of the Japanese trader in China, and the general development of Sino-Japanese trade; whilst the Bank of Formosa is establishing branches throughout the country. So strongly, indeed, is it coming to be seen that Japan's future lies in China, that Japanese financiers are openly agitating for the establishment of a general supervision by Japan of foreign loans to China, and are insisting that Japan's increasing specie reserve should be invested in China, and not frittered away for, as they regard it, in reducing foreign indebtedness. If China is to get still further involved in debt, it is insisted, it is better for Japan that China should be involved with Japan, and that Japan should even lose by it, in hard cash, than that China should become more deeply involved with any other country.

And so the question is eagerly debated. No one can outline, with any degree of certainty, the great settlements which must follow the war, much less the results, in years to come, of these settlements. It is certain enough, however, that one of the most momentous of these adjustments must be made where, on the surface, there least is to be done, namely, in the Far East.

"Get Up to the Net"

It's not easy. Not after the first couple of sets anyway. Past this point getting up to the net becomes down right hard work, requiring every ounce of strength and stamina in your body. And sometimes when this fails you just can't get up to the net and are forced into a defensive game.

Shredded Wheat

can't get people up to the net. It is not a miracle worker, but it can and has done its part in putting players in condition to see the game through, which is the most important consideration after all. Shredded Wheat is a muscle-building, delicious, all-day food made from the whole wheat berry. It contains the maximum of food value and the minimum of waste. It is extremely easy to digest and nutritious to a high degree. It is good, satisfying cereal food, which is about all that one should demand.

LOYOLA COLLEGE MEET DARTMOUTH TO-NIGHT

One of Fastest U. S. College
Teams Plays Loyola
To-night.

An Inter-collegiate hockey feature that should prove of more than passing interest is that which will be staged at the Arena this evening when Loyola College team meets the representatives of Dartmouth College, who play under the name of the Dartmouth Independents. The proceeds of the game will be devoted to Patriotic and Red Cross purposes.

Dartmouth College is an aggregation of fast players which has defeated every team that it stacked up against so far this season. Among those who have fallen by the wayside are Yale, Princeton, Williams, West Point and Pittsburgh A. A. A. The team arrived in the city last night, and all the members appear to be in fine shape for this evening's contest. The Loyola team has been practicing steadily, and one of the best games seen in Montreal for some time will be the result.

During the intermission the ladies of the Montreal Fancy Skating Club will give an exhibition of fancy skating.

The teams will take the ice to-night in the following positions:

The resolution debated upon read: "That a Collegiate education does not prepare one for life." The speakers for the affirmative were Messrs. J. A. Atkins, B.A., and J. T. Robbins; the speakers for the negative being Messrs. W. Taylor and A. V. Litchfield. The judges were Rev. E. A. Findlay, B.A., E. F. Bennet and H. Clapham. The judges rendered their decision in favour of the negative, and judged Mr. Litchfield the best speaker of the evening.

The musical portion of the evening's programme was rendered by Miss Wilton, violinist; Mrs. F. G. Ellis, soprano; Mr. J. T. Robbins, baritone; and Mr. R. A. Rostrom, accompanist. Mr. Clapham also gave an expository address on the pathetic experiences of "Mother Hubbard."

It was a pleasure to the members of the society to have present Mr. Griner, representing the Presbyterian College, and Mr. Knighton, representing the Congregational College.

Lachlin Gibb, Esq., of London, Eng., who is the donor of the Lachlin Gibb Challenge Cup and Prize for the encouragement of public speaking, was also present.

SCI '19 MAN ENLISTS.

Another member of Science '19 has enlisted and been accepted for overseas service, and hopes to sail for England soon. This is A. M. Stevens, "Lex," as he was known at McGill, enlisted with the 158th Battalion, in Vancouver, last June, and while with that regiment took the signalling course, and later received a commission. He went to Camp Hughes, and took his infantry course with the 19th Western Universities Battalion. Upon the breaking up of that camp, Lex went to Kingston, and there qualified for a commission in the Artillery, and is at present attached to the 77th Depot Battery at Regina, with the rank of lieutenant.

the future. The general opinion of the meeting seemed to be that Hughes had done a lot for the college in the way of athletics, and should therefore be given consideration, and since he had promised that they could expect no further breach on his part, he should be given a chance and be reinstated. This motion was put to a vote and carried, although there were some strong dissenting voices.

Permission is Refused.

The second part of his letter, asking permission to play with the Stars for the remainder of the season, was now discussed. This was entirely out of the question. As it stands now, McGill still have a chance for the championship of the City League, and as it looks now the Stars have a good chance for the championship of the Montreal League. Thus in the event of McGill winning the City League, and the Stars winning the Montreal League, we would not only be having a McGill man playing against a McGill team, but also we would be strengthening the Stars in getting to that point. Practically the whole meeting were unanimous that this permission should not be granted, and it was accordingly refused.

Scott's case was the next one to come under consideration. Last year Scott, together with other three students, in company with outside individuals who were not students at the University, travelled to Dartmouth and took part in an inter-collegiate ski meet under the name of McGill without the permission of the Association, for which they were suspended. On Feb. 10 Scott took part in the same meet again without the permission of the Athletic Association, and whether he was responsible or not, it came out in the papers that he had played representing McGill University. This is a deplorable state of affairs, when a man can travel around the country playing under the name of his college, and without the sanction of the body governing athletics at that college. It was the opinion of the meeting that if McGill were to continue in athletics, then the rules of the Athletic Association which govern their athletics, must be observed, and not made a subject of disrespect, as it has been in this case. It was accordingly moved and passed that Mr. Scott be reported to the Athlete Committee of Corporation, as his past offence is beyond all control of the Athletic Association. There being no further business, the meeting then adjourned.

Those present at the meeting were Pres. W. H. Gerrie and Messrs. Rooney, Moquin, H. Pitts, A. Clark, A. Greenwood, P. H. Patterson, Dr. A. S. Lamb and A. Branch.

Public opinion should cry out against the monopolist. The government should be made to issue a proclamation allowing the trade of the monopolist to be investigated, and no one should patronize his wares.

Food should be sold at the cost price of the raw material for the benefit of the poor. Special shops, each with its list of customers, should be established for this purpose.

Lastly, national thrift should be practised throughout the country. If nation can cut down the expenses of some articles, the expenses of all others will go down.

The Housewives' League can do much in all these matters. It should take them as its especial duty, and use its utmost effort to bring about the desired results.

At the close of the lecture Mrs. Pelletier, a former McGill student, thanked Professor Leacock warmly for his great kindness in addressing that institution, who read a resolution adopted by the student body heartily endorsing the movement for national preparedness and universal training.

After the lecture a gentleman in the audience spoke of the greater wholesomeness and cheapness of entire wheat bread as compared with the bread made from what is only part of the wheat. He advised the use of it as a further means of reducing the cost of living.

FOR TRAINING CORPS.

Detailed plans for the work of the University of California Officers' Reserve Corps Training Association as outlined by the executive committee, indicate three lines of immediate action. A canvass of the scientific, engineering and economic resources in men and laboratories of the University, which could be organized to serve the ends of the nation in time of war, will be made. A course of lectures on theoretical and general problems of army administration will commence before the end of the month. A provisional company of infantry will be organized immediately. Membership in the association and participation in its work is tendered to all residents in sympathy with its aims, including particularly members of the faculty, student-body and alumni of the University.

RETURNED SOLDIERS VISIT STE. ANNE

Veterans of the War Saw the Sights at Macdonald College Yesterday.

Two hundred returned soldiers yesterday paid a visit to Macdonald College at Ste. Anne de Beleveu, with a view to studying the methods of agriculture in force at the institution. Many of them contemplate entering farming life.

The soldiers first went to the judging arena of the college, and there Prof. Barton delivered an interesting address on "Farming as an Occupation for the Returned Soldier." The speaker said that the prospective farmer should divide his available capital into three parts, two of which should be devoted to land and building. The remaining one-third should also be divided into three parts, one for stock and the other two for equipment and running expenses. This Prof. Barton believed to be the ideal financial basis of farming.

The lecturer expressed the opinion that the larger the farm was the more remunerative, even in these days of intensive cultivation. He gave an exhaustive and educative review of all the elements necessary for farming and cultivation of the soil. Principal Harrison also spoke briefly, welcoming the visitors.

The party included A. R. Dible, of the Khaki League; Doctor Atherton, of the City Improvement League; Lieut. D. B. McCallum, vocational expert at the Grey Nuns' Home; Capt. A. B. Ware, chairman of the Gardens Committee of the Khaki League; Sergt. Mills, in charge of A unit, and many others.

The visitors were taken through the stables, poultry building and agricultural building, and had lunch in the main building of the college at 1:30 o'clock. At 2:30 they met again in the assembly hall, where addresses were delivered by Prof. Bunting, M. A. Jull, and Miss Campbell.

The programme also included visits to the library, the manual training department, and the nature study room.

COMPULSORY TRAINING FINDS UNIV. FAVOR

U. S. College Committee Report
Favourably to Washington.

Fifteen students, representing the University of Pennsylvania, Princeton, Lehigh, Georgetown and George Washington University, appeared before the senators that the vast majority of the student bodies favored universal military training. They represented, strongly, the representations of student pacifists that the college man of America is opposed to universal military training.

Many of the students had served at one or more of the Plattsburgh training camps, and at least one had seen five months actual service on the border.

Princeton reported that its student body favored universal training by a vote of 503 to 92, and last summer had 264 men at Plattsburgh. Pennsylvania delegates said 1,450 of their men, a big majority of the undergraduates, favored universal military training.

Dr. Henry S. Drinker, chairman of the Military Training Camps' Association, and president of Lehigh University, introduced delegates from that institution, who read a resolution adopted by the student body heartily endorsing the movement for national preparedness and universal training.

Dr. Drinker emphasized the point that the interest of students in military training was not the result of hysteria caused by the European war, as student camps had been held two summers prior to the outbreak of the war.

Yale had a large delegation before the committee, the same morning, and Harvard, which each summer has sent more than a thousand students to Plattsburgh, voiced the enthusiastic sentiment of the Harvard men in favor of universal military training.

EXAMINATION DATE SET.

At meeting of the classes of Law '17 and '18 yesterday, it was decided that the examination in Carriers and Merchant Shipping would be taken on March 7th. Professor Dale-Harris, lecturer in that subject, declared that whatever day decided upon by the classes would be quite satisfactory to him.
